Hal Jehris takes over as Bob Guest era ends

The Lemon Grove San Diego Trust and Savings is welcoming a new Vice President/Bank Manager to their team.

Hal Jehris, a native San Diegan, has been with San Diego Trust and Savings for 36 years. "When I first started with the bank there was just the one head office," said Jehris.

He has lived in El Cajon for 29 years and for 20 of those years he worked at the El Cajon Branch of San Diego Trust and Savings. Before transferring to Lemon Grove Jehris was Branch Manager of the North Park office.

"I like the idea of coming back to a community office," he said, "there is a better rapport with customers."

Jehris said he will be very active in the community and plans to join various organizations to further that goal. In his spare time Jehris said he likes playing golf and fresh water fishing in Northern California.

Bob Guest is helping Jehris to settle in and he will officially take over when Guest retires around the 23rd of December.

Former pastor of St. Phillip's dies

The Rev. Kenneth R. Johnson, Ph.D., 67 of El Cajon, died of leukemia last Wednesday.

Fr. Johnson, who was born in Chicago, Illinois, was Rector Emeritus of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church of Lemon Grove where he served for seventeen years prior to his retirement in 1984. During his 40 years in the ministry, he also had parishes in Iowa, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Illinois and California. At the time of his death, he was Associate at Church of Christ the King (Episcopal) in Alpine.

Fr. Johnson spearheaded the 1970 effort to bring to Lemon Grove the building that is now St. Phillip's at the corner of Palm and Hardy. This building, formerly known as St. Dunstan's, was located on the Campus of San Diego State College and was scheduled for demolition. He determined it would provide the perfect house of worship for his congregation, which at the time was meeting in a combination church/fellowship hall. It was originally built as St. Paul's in 1887 and located at 8th Avenue and S Street in San Diego, making it the oldest parish church in continual use in San Diego.

The late Frank Rhoades, popular columnist of the San Diego Union, referred to Fr. Johnson as "Our Man of the Year" during his negotiations with the County Planning Commission, as well as during his search for the $90,000 to move the building.

The move was made and the dedication took place in September of 1970. However, disaster struck on March 18, 1972 when the church interior was destroyed by fire. It took two years to restore the building and it was rededicated in June of 1974.

Fr. Johnson recently was accepted as a member of the American Association of Professional Hypnotherapists. He has also been a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science and the American Schools of Oriental Research. In addition, he was a member of the Assembly of Episcopal Hospitals and Chaplains and served as member of the Retired Officers Association, past president and vice president of the Lemon Grove Lion's Club, and 32nd degree Mason and member of Al Bahr Shrine.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; three daughters, Roberta Beard of Lemon Grove, Martha Descoteau of Spring Valley, Monica Johnson of El Cajon; three sons, Kenneth Robert Johnson, Jr., of Seattle, WA, Mark Johnson of Spring Valley, Christopher Johnson of El Cajon; and six grandchildren.

It was Fr. Johnson's wish that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Memorial Fund of Church of Christ the King, Alpine for a future parish hall.

30,000 attend Skyline's performances of "The Living Christmas Tree"

For 16 years Skyline Wesleyan Church has presented The Living Christmas Tree as a gift to the community and as a reminder of the real meaning of Christmas. The production has grown from four performances to 27 over a 12 day period, and it is so popular that again it was sold out for the entire 12-day run before the first performance was held! Over 30,000 attended this year's celebration.

A new wrinkle this year was the addition of a special benefit performance to raise money for a community charitable organization. The Child Abuse Prevention Foundation (CAPF) of San Diego was selected, and a goal of $100,000 was set. The special performance was called the Expression of Love Benefit, as the church had no religious or political connection with CAPF, but a deisre to share with the community in a significant way. At the end of the evening, Skyline Wesleyan Church presented a check for $181,300 to Norma Hirsh, President and Chairman of the Board of CAPF.

In addition, the church became an official drop-off point for the annual Holiday Food Drive, and by making the audiences aware of this program, thousands of pounds of food for the needy were collected.

But the money and the food were by-products of The Living Christmas Tree, which is a major production involving over 350 workers and musicians under the direction of Randy Rebold and a staff of over twenty including: David Johnson, Technical Director and Lighting Design; Miriam Conrad, Associate Producer and Director; Roxanne Fulkerson, Choreographer; and Dan Perrin, Musical Director.

The success of The Living Christmas Tree program is the result of extensive planning and commitment by the church from Senior Pastor, John Maxwell, to the youngest performer or worker. A great deal of the success of the Expression of Love Benefit has to be attributed to co-chairman Bill Laugaland, President of Sunland Communities, Inc., who spearheaded the fund-raising effort with the help of Art Butler, Patrick Eggers, Skip Elmore, Roger Lichtenberger, Marv McCarthy, Tom Morgan,Dick Peterson, Bob Simpson, Terry Stauber, Robert Swisher and Peter Vanderwerff.

The impact of The Living Christmas Tree and the Expression of Love Benefit, and of the ministry of the church itself, is very significant--and growing. It will take another year of planning and a great deal of work, but next year's performances will undoubtedly produce a few more new wrinkles in the evolution of the program.

Rev. Kenneth R. Johnson, former pastor of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church.

Joe Freed Picks the "Best of the 1980's"

Alright everybody, it's my turn. We all know that every film critic in every newspaper in America is bound by law to release a "Best of the 80's" list. So here's mine. Actually, it isn't too difficult to compose such a list, as the 80's had more than it's fair share of greats: from modern epics like "The Mission" to cult-classics like "Blade Runner."

Of course, there were hundreds of films which could be referred to as..oh, I don't know...TRASH! You know, five "Elm Streets", "Godzilla 1985", "Transylvania 6-5000", "Howard the Duck", "Ishtar", the recent "Harlem Nights", and the list goes on. But forget about the bad ones, here's 20 that were truly great.

THE TOP 20 MOVIES

1. The Mission
2. Amadeus
3. Dangerous Liaisons
4. The Last Emperor
5. Breaker Morant
6. Hope and Glory
7. A Passage to India
8. The Right Stuff
9. Witness
10. The Emperor Strikes Back
11. Radio Days
12. E.T.
13. Raiders of the Lost Ark
14. The Cotton Club
15. Empire of the Sun
16. Ordinary People
17. Hannah and her Sisters
18. The Last Temptation of Christ
19. Crimes and Misdemeanors
20. Blade Runner

Faith Chapel's Christmas production is well received

Over 4,000 people attended the weekend performances of "A Family Christmas Festival" presented by Faith Chapel's Choir and Orchestra.

Visitors were treated to a musical progression which began outside the chapel with members of a brass group, "Brassania" performing Christmas carols, inside the lobby a trio of strings - cello, harp, and violin, and on both sides of the staircases two guitarists strummed traditional tunes.

The show opened with a group sing of traditional carols as ushers passed out greeting cards designed especially for Faith Chapel by Mehl Lawson, a member of the Cowboy Artists of America.

The program featured a twelve member hand bell group, 83 member choir, 43 member orchestra, children's choir, and Nativity drama.

Executive Producer, Rick Sailors said, "It's been enjoyable to put it together. It's run surprisingly smooth for something this big. We've done some new things with special effects - scrim, a fabric used to create an illusion of a solid wall or backdrop under certain lighting, and snowflakes falling from the ceiling. Dean Kunde has really been the master mind behind the program especially the effects."

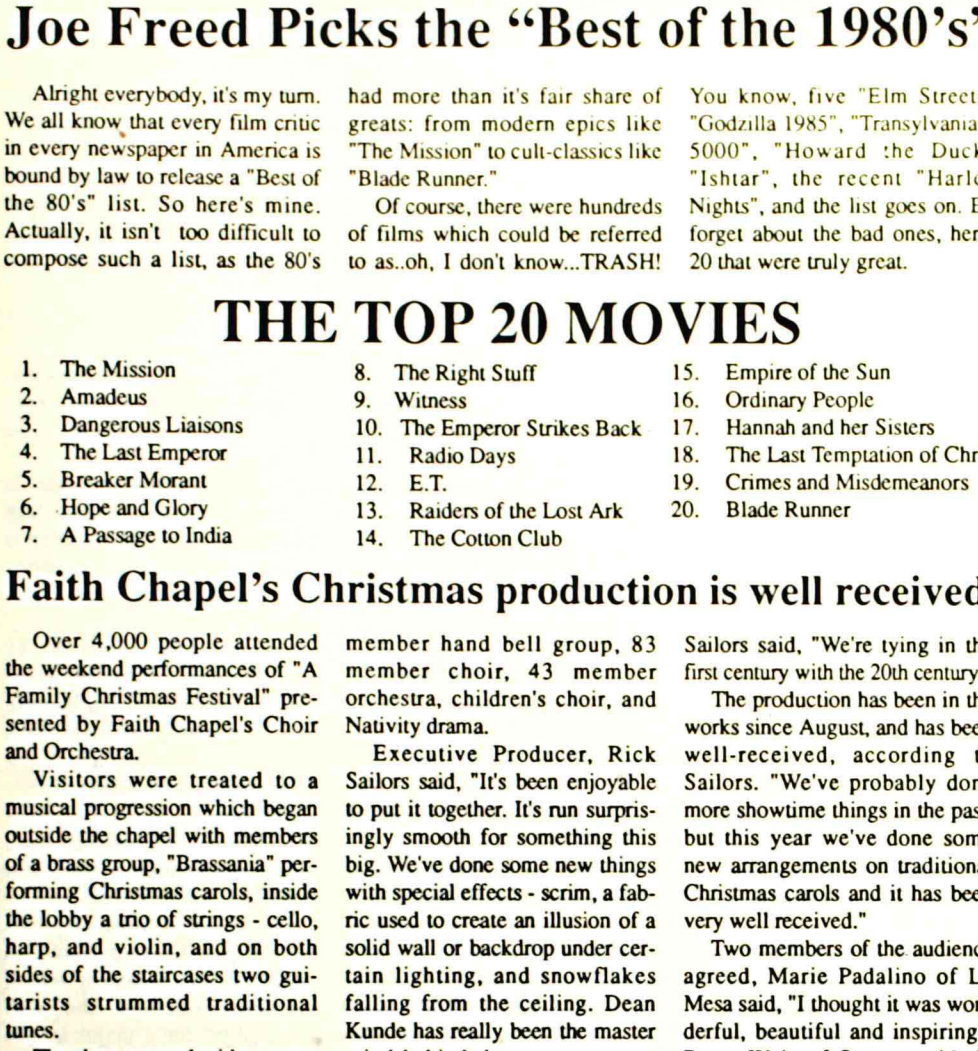

To create the Nativity scene Mary and Joseph were dressed in costume with a live Baby Jesus. Children dressed in modern clothes presented gifts such as a skate board and basketball.

Sailors said, "We're tying in the first century with the 20th century."

The production has been in the works since August, and has been well-received, according to Sailors. "We've probably done more showtime things in the past, but this year we've done some new arrangements on traditional Christmas carols and it has been very well received."

Two members of the audience agreed, Marie Padalino of La Mesa said, "I thought it was wonderful, beautiful and inspiring." Betty Weir of Santee said, "I thought it was very well-done. I thoroughly enjoyed it. It puts you in the Christmas spirit."

Video and audio tapes of the 90-minute program are available by calling Faith Chapel at 461-7451.

Viewing Congress with Warts

Over the years the United States has provided the world's nations a design for freedom and the happiness that freedom offers.

As the year ends, a surprising number have embraced the first wobbly steps to democratic capitalism.

Yet, one of our neighbors has gone the other way. It has headed toward one man rule at the hands of President Manuel Noriega, who has this year abrogated Panama's general election and taken over the nation. He proclaimed himself president. As president he accepted the honor (from himself) as chief of the Panamanian armed forces. Earlier this month, as chief, he declared war on the United States. A few days ago an armed unit of Noriega's "palace" shot and killed an unarmed American officer.

Almost any other nation would have Noriega in prison or assassinated by now.

What a comparison. Here in the Americas, we have the best and worst forms of government.

Without much concern, they'll chose the good, ol' American way.

But, as they do, they'll find us with some warts that hadn't been fully uncovered. When they do find them, they will be disappointed.

It was Edwin Feulner, president of the Heritage Foundation who tipped us off on what he sees.

In a sentence, he notes that congress has not been fighting so much as they have engaged in war against capitalism.

Congress voted itself another pay raise but if members were rewarded for their performances, most of their salaries would be cut, Feulner said. He quoted Carol Cox of the Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget who said, "The entire process went from bad numbers to bad policy to worse compromises."

The irony, it was said, is that just as democratic capitalism and American ideals are routing communism in every corner of the world, congress violates those very ideals by threatening to turn the federal government into a far more intrusive and spendthrift bureaucracy than it already is.

Members of Congress keep winning re-election by pandering to special interests with taxpayers' money, which is why we have deficits despite the huge increases in revenues generated by the record-long economic expansion of the '80s. It is an index of how debased the process had become that no one is surprised anymore.

The report continues: The '90s could be even worse since congress is full of bad ideas for monstrously expensive government programs in such areas as the environment, health care and welfare. If this pattern continues, the next century will be even worse, as an aging population swells the rolls of such programs as Social Security, Medicare and Civil Service Retirement.

"Broke" will be too kind a word for our financial situation then.

Free-Market approaches to solve these problems have been spelled out, as have the failures of liberal approaches. But after dominating intellectual debates of the '80s, conservatives still face uphill work in winning the political and policy battles.

On the brink of a new decade, conservativism's foreign policy goals - the rollback of communism, the spreading of democratic and Free-Market ideals - are far closer to reality than most of us could have realized 10 years ago. Yet, congress has given Americans a strong taste of immorality and prolific spending.

The pain of these actions will come next year with your tax bill. With prior knowledge, emerging nations will certainly keep the keys to their treasuries under tighter control.

The True Christmas, Not Xmas

Have we lost the true meaning of Christmas? Santa Claus and his commercial realm have almost taken over completely.

How many of us really know that Christmas is the day that the little Christ child was born and that we are supposed to celebrate his birthday each year at this time? Don't we realize what the birth of this Man has meant for all mankind? The man that sacrificed his life for all people then, now and forever. He was responsible for the writing of a book that has out sold all the best sellers in history put together (the Bible). A man whose name has been mentioned daily more than any other man for the last 2000 years (Jesus Christ)

Why is it that all our Christmas scenes depict pine trees with snow and reindeer? Don't we know that the beautiful place where the little Christ child was born was just an oasis in the desert, with palm trees, sand and camels?

We have set aside a holiday for the birthdays of presidents, veterans and now Martin Luther King. Christ's birthday has been taken over by old Kris Kringle, whoever he was. It has become a day to remember our friends and relatives with expensive gifts, sometimes unwanted. Why wait until Christmas to love thy neighbor? Love him today.

If the people of our neighborhood, country and entire world would observe the true meaning of Christmas, not X-M-A-S, by giving our neighbors gifts of kindness, love and affection, all our local and worldly problems could be solved. Can you remember the last time you helped someone without any thoughts of being repaid? If you can, didn't it make you feel good inside? What a wonderful fruitful habit to get into.

God is like a Hallmark greeting card, he cared enough to send his very best--his only begotten son, Jesus Christ.

Auto Club offers holiday safety tips

More than 3,500 California motorists were killed or injured in 1988 between Thanksgiving and New Year's Eve in drinking-related accidents.

The Automobile Club of Southern California offers several suggestions to help assure a safe holiday celebration.

"The most important message is to not drink and drive - it's that simple. Party-givers, family and friends are largely responsible for keeping drinkers from driving as alcohol adversely affects their judgement," said Rhonda Aizenberg, PH. D., the Auto Club's public safety manager.

Offer non-alcoholic alternatives at parties, such as mineral water, soft drinks or juices. Serve high carbohydrate and high fat foods as they slow down the absorption of alcohol into the bloodstream.

An hour before the party is scheduled to end, serve a rich dessert and coffee or tea. "It takes approximately one hour for the effect of a single drink to wear off," she reminds.

If a guest appears to be alcohol impaired, hosts should arrange for a ride home with a non-drinking friend, call a taxi or offer a place to sleep.

Parents of party-going teens should discuss in advance how to handle drinking and driving situations, either as a driver or passenger. "Help your teenagers develop a safety action plan," she said. "This might mean arranging a carpool or contacting a local 'safe ride' program to send a car to transport partygoers with no questions asked."

Motorists should also be alert for alcohol-impaired drivers. If you see a driver you feel may be impaired, call the California Highway Patrol immediately, using the "911" number. Be prepared to describe the vehicle, the location and direction it was traveling and, if possible, the license plate number.

BASEBALL DUMPS LADY UMP

Million dollar salaries for super and even less-than-super, stars are paving baseball's way into the 21st century.

Unionization forced collective bargaining that opened the door to free agency and legal judgments against the self-serving and tight fisted collection of owners who plotted to maintain the status quo of baseball serfdom. They still live in the 19th century.

Baseball's labor movement opened the doors of the vault to players with good years, sharp agents and a lack of loyalty. Even $3 million a year isn't enough for some of the more pragmatic players, who match a brilliant season and professional awards to an end-of-contract year. Does the name Mark Davis ring a bell?

From professional baseball's first days, owners used the archaic management technique of economic slavery to control players and keep costs "under control."

Owners not only owned the team, but they literally "owned" the player. At least they owned his playing talents. A player was tied to "his" team for his playing life.

Labor laws and forceful litigation have broken the strangle hold owners had on players. Now the shoe is on the other foot. Owners are forced to pay outrageous prices for marginal talent.

Expensive lesson, but did they learn? Naaw.

Baseball's directorate no longer "owns" the players, but they do maintain ownership control over umpires.

Baseball officialdom gives them nothing. After a legal fight major league umpires are finally drawing middle class wages, but minor league umpires rank down the pay scale below field hands.

If they should survive the low pay, poor living conditions, long trips, endless personal abuse, and work their way up the ladder of the minor leagues to knock on the door of a major league contract, baseball's "Master of the Plantation" judgements still govern the day. And the hell with civil rights.

A case in point: Pam Postema, a highly experienced and thoroughly professional umpire, who is also a lady.

She paid her dues in hundreds of dimly lit stadiums, traveling thousands of miles to keep a demanding schedule while polishing her skills to professional perfection.

Pam has been a pro for 11 years, the last 7 years in the top AAA minor leagues. Players rate her highly, giving her credit for a consistent strike zone and being "in position" on the field.

With her record and experience, Pam is well past due for a major league umpiring berth. But baseball says it isn't to be.

Officials of both the American and National Leagues, sitting in judgement at the recent winter meetings, decided she was "unsuitable" for a major league umpiring assignment, or any other assignment for that matter, and dropped her right out of professional baseball. Why? Because she's a woman? Good thought.

If legal action comes to pass, baseball will again be a certain loser. They were found guilty three times on conspiracy charges, and they lost on free agency and arbitration.

Now they have a career ending, totally unsupportable, no cause, highly-qualified-woman firing.

Pam Postema didn't want to be a "cause," but she automatically became one when top management decided there is no place in the game for a woman umpire.

Don't quit fighting now, Pam. Please!

Remember when . . .

By Mary Johanna Savary

Remember when you lived in one of those states where a 'warm' winter day was 32 degree's?

Remember when you thought the snowplow forgot your street after that last major snowstorm... you plodded out and shoveled your entire driveway, went back inside cold, wet and exhausted, just to hear the snowplow making it's way down your street. You run to the window and watch as he plows by, leaving a four foot bank of snow where you just finished shoveling. Remember when you forgot to place your last pair of mittens or gloves out to dry, and found them the next day with your other pair, too wet to wear. Remember when coming into the house meant propping yourself up against the wall outside the front door to take off that snowy pair of boots or galoshes, placing them on a mat, then stepping in the mound of snow they left, while in your stocking feet.

Remember when fashionable was more important than sensible, leaving the house looking great but freezing. Remember when you were blasted by a snowball, and the sting you felt. Remember when you had to start your car twenty minutes before you were ready to leave the house. Remember when your car didn't start. Remember when you use to listen to the news in the morning... saying a silent prayer that your school would be closed. Remember when your mother bundled you up in all those clothes and then topped it off by cramming you into a snowsuit... you couldn't see, hear or bend our knees or elbows, but at least you were warm.

Remember when you got into your car yesterday and rolled down your window or turned on your air conditioning and wondered when it was going to cool off? Will we ever be able to recognize and appreciate the good in our lives?

Grove Meandering

By Fran Rottet

The Rev. Kenneth "Ken" Robert Johnson, former vicar of St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Lemon Grove, passed away Wednesday, December 13, 1989, at the age of 67.

Father Johnson was in Alvarado Community Medical Center fighting a battle with leukemia at the time of his death.

Many area residents will remember Rev. Johnson as the man most responsible for bringing the old St. Dunstan's parish church to Lemon Grove and his persistence in raising funds for restoration of the church to the original fine detail.

Rev. Johnson was born March 2, 1922, in Chicago, Illinois. He was a graduate of the Army Officers Training Course and a lieutenant colonel in the California National Guard Reserve.

Father Johnson and his wife, Dorothy, would have celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary on December 16.
